How to Make $1500 a Month from Home as a Writer, Artist or Photographer Jess Melarry

Second edition with all reviewer issues addressed. The "two steps" that were intended as humor have been removed to avoid further misunderstandings.

Writers Wanted

Photos Bought

Artists Hired

These are phrases that have become a reality in the last few years, thanks to the Internet. The Web runs on content -- writers write content, photographers photograph it and artists draw it. The Web has also opened the door to a much wider marketplace for all writers, photogs, artists and crafters. There doesn't have to be a middleman to sanction our work as worthy -- the artist now commands his own future. The best news is that your good work is the only portfolio you require. You don't have to have a reputation, an agent, representation or anything other than the skills you possess.

This book shows you how to grasp this opportunity and build a truly lucrative business with your own work. It's not a pipedream. I've done it myself and know many friends who have. There is so much opportunity available that I have no problem at all telling everyone how to do it. This book gathers all the important information and distills it for easy access.

My book is more than just another book about how to make money online. It's a detailed, step-by-step guide for writers, artists and photographers on how they can sell their work and earn money from home. It's not a get-rich-quick scam, it's a methodical description with detailed information on how it's done. There is so many opportunities now to make money writing, earn an income selling art or photographs.

There are, right now, thousands of posted assignments seeking writers to write them. There are websites, publishers and other markets desperately searching for new photo content. The new stuff is exhausted every day. The appetite is never satisfied. Content is king. And content is what writers, artists and photographers provide. Beyond that, there's another consumer market anxious to purchase what you have to offer.

Those who come in at the beginning, it is said, are there until the end. This is the time to start building a career online doing something you love. Whether you're looking to do this full-time or as a part-time way to make extra cash, you can. The field is wide open to everyone.

I tell you how I do it. You can do it, too.
